Originally from southeastern Michigan, Brie Arthur studied Landscape Design and Horticulture at Purdue University. She was a professional plant propagator at leading nurseries before transitioning her focus to Green Industry communications through writing, public speaking, film production and consulting. She is a published author, with her debut book, The Foodscape Revolution, becoming a best seller on Amazon.

As a garden industry communicator, Brie is leading the national suburban Foodscape movement, a model of community development that incorporates sustainable, local food production. She speaks internationally on a variety of horticulture topics and is a correspondent on the PBS television show Growing A Greener World.
